Reminder: Recycle Junk Mail Starting in October Mid-Connecticut Project Expands List of Recyclable Commodities

HARTFORD, Conn. – Residents of 70 cities and towns will be able to recycle their junk mail starting in October.

The Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority has expanded its list of recyclables, meaning residents of CRRA Mid-Connecticut Project municipalities won't have to stuff their junk mail into the trash any more.

Mid-Connecticut
Project towns is

“If it’s paper and comes through the mail, just add it to your newspapers for recycling,” said Thomas P. Gaffey, CRRA manager of recycling and enforcement. “It’s as simple as that.”

Already, Mid-Connecticut Project residents can recycle No. 1 and No. 2 plastics, aluminum and steel cans, glass containers, corrugated cardboard, newspaper and magazines.

For more information, contact your local public works department.

The Connecticut Resources Recovery Authority is a quasi-public agency whose mission is to work for – and in – the best interests of the municipalities of the state of Connecticut.
